"PAGEANT."

Professor Skeat on the Proper Pronunciation of the Word.

Instead of trusting to casual observers, it is far better to understand the principles that govern our pronunciation. There is one principle in particular which, rightly considered, gives us a good deal of help in the instance under consideration.

In my "Primer of English Etymology" I give some simple rules of accentuation. Rule 1 is as follows:

"When the length of a word is augmented an original long vowel is apt to be shortened by the accentual stress falling upon it." Such augmentation is due to the formation of a derivative.

An easy example is seen in the case of cone, pronounced with a long "o," for if we form a derivative by adding the suffix "ic" the result is conic, with a short "o."

There is a general principle that affects the whole language and sets up a standard habit. By way of illustration, compare bile with bilious, crime with criminal, brake and bracken, dine and dinner, mine and mineral, coal and collier and perhaps at least seventy more. A remarkable instance is seen in collie, which is merely a new pronunciation of coaly. Certain dogs were once called coaly dogs because of their coal black markings. An extension of the same principle may be made in comparing the dissyllabic forms agent and cogent with the allied trysyllables agitate and cogitate.

When once such a principle has become general it is obvious that a word like pageant will be influenced by the very large number of dissyllables that have the former vowel short, and this is why the truly normal pronunciation of the word resembles the "a" in Paget. I do not certainly know the origin of that name, but I suppose it is merely the diminutive of page, in which the "a" is shortened as a matter of course simply because the diminutive "et" has been added.

The pronunciation of primer has often been discussed, and many are they who think that they clinch the matter by saying that the "i" in the Latin primus is long, for that proves nothing at all as regards modern English, and those who have studied our peculiar ways with the closest attention are well aware that the normal way is, after all, to pronounce it as if it were spelled primmer. We do not therefore spell it with a double "m," because that is not our system. We write tonic and conic and mimic in order to show their connection with tone and cone and mime, and we trust that the unfortunate reader, after he has thus had the etymology explained to him, will provide the pronunciation for himself. Such a word as pageant may be usefully compared with magic and tropic and agitate.—London Academy.

SAVED BY QUICK WIT.

The Escape of Sir Archibald Douglas at Poitiers.

In the battle of Poitiers (1356) a number of Scottish soldiers fought on the side of the French, and several of them were taken prisoners by the English. Among them was Sir Archibald Douglas, half brother of Lord William Douglas. Being dressed in a suit of splendid armor, the victors thought they had captured—as indeed they had—some great nobleman. Several of the English were about to strip off his armor when Sir William Ramsay of Colluthie, who was also a prisoner, happening to catch Sir Archibald's eye, gave him a meaning look. Pretending to be very angry, he cried out: "You rascal, how is it that you are wearing your master's armor? Come here and pull off my boots!" Douglas, seemingly thoroughly cowed, went humbly forward and drew off a boot, with which Sir William began to beat him. The English onlookers at once interfered on Douglas' behalf, saying that he was a person of great rank and a lord. "What!" shouted Ramsay, shaking with laughter. "He a lord? Why, he is a base knave and, I suppose, has slain his master. Go, you villain, and search the field for the body of my cousin, your master, and when you have found it let me know, that I may give it decent burial." All this was acted so naturally that the English allowed Ramsay to ransom the pretended manservant for 40 shillings. The money having been paid, Sir William gave Douglas another thrashing and then bade him begone. Sir Archibald lost no time in effecting his escape, which he owed solely to the ingenuity of his friend.

Human Muscles.

If the muscles in the arm of the average man were put together and a nervous impulse passed into them, their contraction would lift a weight of 224 pounds from the ground. Muscles have the unique power when stimulated by nerve impulse of contracting somewhat as rubber bands might do if they could squeeze themselves up shorter. They are, in fact, the reverse of rubber, for they contract only and cannot stretch out.—Minneapolis Journal.

One Comfort.

They were weeping for the head of the house, whose automobile had gone over the bank.

"Anyway," said the widow, drying her tears for the moment, "his death was in the height of fashion."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Beulah's Engagement.

By ANNE HEILMAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

The heir to the Fackerel millions leaned back in the great chair and bent a stealthy, puzzled glance in the plate the butler had put before him. He had no more idea of the food the plate contained than he had of the proper fork to eat it with.

"Tell me your object in wanting this secretaryship, Fackerel," suggested Judge Delmas, apparently oblivious of his guest's dilemma. "Why you, with almost unlimited wealth at your command, should desire such a position puzzles me."

"Am I very well off?" queried Fackerel. "You know money just means figures to a twelve dollar per week bank clerk."

"You are better off than this young Hobson, who wants a secretary. He's also a client of mine."

"What?" exclaimed Fackerel excitedly. "It—it is incredible!"

The judge smiled reassuringly. Though Delmas had known his old friend's nephew but two or three days, he had taken a fancy to the boy.

Ned Fackerel was about twenty-five, a well set up, broad shouldered fellow, with a fresh, unlined face, which made him look younger than he was. He had a well shaped head, with steady, deep set eyes and a square jaw.

"Well, judge," went on the boy in his deep, pleasant voice, "since I've come into this money the papers have been printing columns about me and my wealth. I'm besieged by reporters and deluged with congratulations and invitations from people I never heard of. I'd like to drop out of sight for awhile until I learn the ropes, you know, and I can't travel very far because you'll need me to sign papers now and again. And I should like to try being a rich man's secretary so that I could see a little life from the inside.

"It will not do you any harm," said the judge, "and the experience may do you good."

Hobson was only too glad to have a secretary recommended by the judge, and as Fackerel was quick and adaptable he had little trouble. He accompanied the young millionaire to his great country house, where Hobson expected to entertain in lavish fashion, with the assistance of an amiable, pleasure loving aunt.

One morning after a night's carousal with some congenial friends Hobson sent a peremptory summons for his secretary.

"The Warings are coming today," he announced. "I nearly forgot all about it. You'll have to go to the station, Fackerel. I'm hanged if I feel up to it, and some one must meet her majesty."

"Very well, sir," replied the secretary, rather stiffly. Hobson's way of speaking of women did not coincide with Fackerel's ideas, and the youth always grew especially ruffled at Hobson's careless mention of the girl he expected to marry.

Fackerel had never seen Beulah Waring. When he arrived at the station to find the train in and a number of people looking about expectantly, he was puzzled. He was making his way across the platform when he saw a tall, sun browned girl coming toward him. As she stepped aside quickly to avoid being run down by a truck load of trunks the bag slipped from her shoulder, and she tripped over it, falling straight into Fackerel's outstretched arms.

"Oh, I hope you aren't hurt!" he exclaimed so fervently that she smiled at him.

"Not a bit, thank you," she replied. "Can you tell me whether Mr. Hobson's trap is here?"

"I can indeed," he answered, picking up the bag. "I drove it over to meet Miss Waring."

"I am Beulah Waring. And—you?" she inquired in a rather imperious way.

"I am Mr. Hobson's secretary," stammered Fackerel.

"The others are coming on a later train. I hurried on for a round of golf before luncheon, as I knew the Greers and Denisons were already here," she explained as Fackerel assisted her into the trap.

The coming of Beulah Waring was an event in Ned Fackerel's life. With the single mindedness of a thoroughly sincere and unworldly man he fell in love with her deeply and for all time. Beulah was honestly unconscious of it, though she might have known it had she stopped to reason out his thoughtfulness for her, his gentle air of protection and deference and his deep, silent delight in her society. She was not in any way self conscious, and love had never touched her.

Her distaste for her approaching marriage was absorbing her mind to the exclusion of all else. Hobson was the only one who understood the situation, and he found a vast amount of quiet, cynical amusement in it. He said nothing to Beulah, whose engagement to him had been the fruition of a scheming mother's work, because he expected her to allow him great latitude in his own affairs.

On the night of Beulah's birthday there was a dinner at the house. While it was in progress Fackerel was striding up and down a secluded path on the lawn having it out with himself.

He knew at last just where he stood and how he felt toward Beulah, and he determined rightly or wrongly that she should know something of his feelings for her.

After a time he grew calmer. Looking up, he saw Beulah coming straight to him over the lawn, her white gown gleaming against the dark background of the trees.

"You haven't even congratulated me, Mr. Fackerel," she began, "and now my birthday is nearly over."

"I've been hoping all day for the chance, Miss Waring. I—I want to beg you to accept this in remembrance of some one to whom you have been very kind."

He held out to her a small square box, and she took it wonderingly.

"How nice of you! Why, Mr. Fackerel," she exclaimed as she opened the box and saw the exquisite pendant of diamonds, "how perfectly beautiful and how good of you, but"—

"But what?" he asked as she paused irresolutely.

"I cannot accept so costly a gift, and—from you," she said.

"I want you to have it," he persisted, "to remember me, if you will, when I am gone."

"Gone!" she repeated. "Why, surely you are not going away?"

"Tomorrow, and this is our"—

"But why do you go?" she interrupted, suddenly growing white and wistful. "I don't want you to go. I need you. I"—

"I trust I don't intrude?" broke in Hobson's cool, sneering voice. "You make a charming tableau."

Fackerel scarcely heeded him. He was too much dazed at the significance of Beulah's last trembling speech to think or to care to think what Hobson's presence meant. A sudden hopefulness sprang up within him, and he could scarcely keep back the eager words upon his lips. Beulah, with the gleaming pendant still in her hand, looked from her betrothed's sneering face to the other's, white and intent, and knew at last what the fierce, sweet pain at her heart portended.

"Having clandestine meetings with my promised wife is something I could easily overlook," the sneering voice went on. "But a predilection for making expensive presents by one who has access to my safe is another matter. You can consider yourself discharged, Fackerel."

"Robert, I am ashamed of you," exclaimed Beulah, hastily placing herself between the two men as Fackerel made a step forward. "You can consider our engagement broken," drawing his ring from her finger and thrusting it into his hand. "Have the goodness to leave me."

"I'll look over your accounts at once, Fackerel," he threatened as he turned and walked away over the lawn.

"Beulah," began Fackerel abruptly, "I don't know how to say it well, but I love you with all my heart, and I want you to say that you care for me. Do you?"

She stepped up to him and put her two hands on his shoulders, and so for a long minute she stood looking straight into Fackerel's eyes.

"As I never dreamed of caring for any one on earth, my dear," she whispered.

A Blowing Well.

There is a blowing well near Raymondville, Texas county, Mo. This well, which is on a hill, was drilled in 1899 to a depth of 187 feet. Soft water was struck at the bottom and rose seven feet in the well. In a dry time, especially in the winter, the well becomes dry. In drilling it a cave three feet high was struck at a depth of 100 feet. When the well is dry, if there is a long prevailing wind from the north, a current of air rushes from the pipe strong enough to blow the cap from the tubing. This fact illustrates the honeycombed and cavernous nature of the rocks in this region. About ten miles to the north in the valley of Ashley creek is what Schoolcraft described in the account of his trip through this region in 1818 as "the valley of caves." Here in the eroded bluffs may be seen numerous caves, which testify to the great amount of underground drainage and through which probably the prevailing winds are sucked underground and carried for long distances, accounting for the blowing well ten miles away.—Chicago News.

Safe Deposit Secrets.

"If all the safe deposit boxes in New York could talk at once," said a veteran police detective, "a great many interesting things would be learned and no end of mysteries revealed. Stolen wealth would come to light, unsuspected riches be revealed, a number of bluffs on bundles of waste paper be called and little romances brought to light. I once knew of an aged spinster who leased a box that contained only a few photographs and a bundle of old letters. Of absolutely no value to any one else, they were so priceless to her that she did not dare to leave them in a less secure place. I know of an old man who was supposed to own only a small house and lot on the upper east side, and yet when he died over $100,000 of gilt edged securities were found in a deposit box downtown."

A Candid Hostess.

Mrs. Whitaker (in "Sicily and England, 1848-70") has preserved some odd reminiscences of people once well known. We think she has succeeded in giving us perhaps the rudest communication ever sent by a hostess to a guest. The Lady Shelley of the day sent the following to a young lady of good position who could sing and had twice declined to sing at her house, but was not good looking: "Dear Miss Temple-Bodewin, I had asked you and your sister to my house hoping you would sing for me. As my rooms are small I can only invite people who are either useful or ornamental. As you will not be the one and you certainly are not the other, I must request that in future you refrain from coming to me."—London Saturday Review.

SECRET WRITING.

How Letters May Be Made Safe From Prying Eyes.

Even with the most unromantic of us occasions sometimes arise when we should like to make some memorandum or write some letter which cannot be read except by those we wish to do so. Here is a simple method:

Soak a sheet of note paper in cold water and lay it perfectly flat upon a pane of glass. Place above it another sheet, dry this time, and on the upper sheet write your message with a fairly hard pencil. You now destroy the dry paper and allow all the moisture to evaporate from the wet piece. Don't hold it to the fire, but let it dry naturally. If you then examine it closely you will see not the faintest trace of writing, but if you moisten the paper once more and hold it up to the light you can read quite plainly all you wrote. It will show up like the watermark on a postage stamp. This method, by the way, is sometimes adopted by convicts. They use their gruel cans instead of glass and a sharp piece of wood for a pencil.

Another way is less dirty and even more effective. Lay several sheets of paper on a flat surface and write upon the top one. Then remove the bottom sheet, on which no impression appears. If you hold this in the vapor of iodine, however, the writing will turn brown and be quite legible. The explanation is plain. The note paper contains starch, which on being pressed turns to hydramide, a substance which is acted on by iodine in the manner described.—Answers.

THE PURSER'S JOKE.

Why Religious Services Were Not Held on That Trip.

On most of the big ocean steamers a minister is usually found among the passengers, and invariably he is called upon on Sunday to conduct religious service in the main dining saloon. Occasionally the man of the cloth seeks the purser and asks if he may conduct a service on the Sabbath. A case of this sort happened recently on one of the Red D steamers on the run from New York to La Guayra. A young minister who three days before the steamer sailed had taken orders from a seminary, and a day later a wife asked the purser if he might conduct religious service on the following day, which was Sunday. The purser replied that the dining saloon was at his disposal and that the passengers would be informed. "At what hour shall the service begin?" asked the young minister. The purser rubbed his brow a moment and replied that he could begin at "nine bells." The minister and his bride appeared in the dining saloon at 9 o'clock in the morning and waited four hours for the congregation, which did not come. On the following day he listened again for "nine bells," but heard them not.—New York Tribune.

She Said the Wrong Thing.

"I shall never forget the breakfast I gave to a pretty girl when I first knew her," the short man began. "It would make your mouth water to hear what it was—grape fruit to begin with, the most delicate of breakfast food with cream, a choice broiled chicken—it was a late breakfast—the finest of fruit, coffee. I can't remember the things I ordered for her at that breakfast, and what do you think she said when she finished? She said: 'You needn't have gone to so much trouble. I don't care for anything but a couple of eggs for my breakfast and a piece of toast.'"

"It was the wrong thing to say, I will admit," sighed his wife. "I was that girl, and I have been living ever since on a couple of eggs for my breakfast and a piece of toast."—New York Press.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in affecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Keep Cool and Trust To Your Savings Bank.

The financial flurry which had its inception a few weeks ago in Wall street has proved infectious and now there is a stringency in the money market all over the United States. Here in California there is really no occasion for alarm, as our banking institutions were never more stable than at the present time. In their vaults lie all kinds of gilt-edge securities to insure the safety of the funds of depositors, and not a little ready money, too, but not quite sufficient to go all around. Loans have been carefully and judiciously made for the depositors to earn them their interest money. These loans for the most part are doubly secured by mortgages, interest bearing bonds and other securities that have a permanent market value.

These securities, in case of a financial flurry such as is now confronting our bankers, cannot be converted into cash in a day and no banking house in the world could pay over to its depositors all the money placed to their credit in case of a general demand and keep open its doors. If a bank attempted to do so, it would be a case of first come, first served, and the devil would get the hindmost depositors, sure. In other words, a few excited depositors would soon clean out the bank of its available cash and there would be no ready funds for the more sane depositors to carry on their legitimate business enterprises. The hogs and maniacs would have got it all. As this would be the inevitable result of a bank throwing its doors wide open to gone daft depositors in case of a threatened financial panic conservative and safe banking institutions throughout the State, while refusing to take advantage of the legal holidays inaugurated by Governor Gillett to avert a threatened financial panic. have kept open their doors and very wisely placed a check on their depositors by confining the withdrawals to a stipulated sum. This has a tendency to protect both the banks and their depositors. Any other policy at this time might involve the most solvent bank and its depositors in utter financial ruin.

As stated at the outset of this article, there is no serious cause for alarm in the financial flurry that has been wafted Pacific coastward by the failure of a few rotten concerns in Wall street on the Atlantic seaboard. Times were never more prosperous and money more plentiful than now, but it is too widely scattered to be called in at once without sacrificing the securities which protects our banking system in its loans.

Keep cool. Let the banks alone, and you have our word for it they will work out this financial problem in short order—in fact they are working it out now in putting a check on the withdrawals, for this is only a scare at the most.

Legislature to Meet in Extraordinary Session.

Governor Gillett, in answer to the demands of the general public, will issue a call to-day for the convening of the State Legislature in extraordinary session in Sacramento next Tuesday.

Five important matters will be considered. These, in brief, are as follows: First—To add a new section to the polttical code relating to the postponement of the collection of taxes, to the postponement of delinquency for the non-payment of the same, and postponing the time for the preparation of delinquent lists for unpaid taxes, etc. Second—To amend that section of the code of civil procedure relating to holidays, to the effect that during the time of special holidays declared by proclamation of the Governor, the courts have power to call juries to hear and determine all criminal cases and prosecutions and to vest the courts with other powers that will be set forth more fully in the Governor's call. Third—To approve certain amendments to the charter of San Francisco, relating to a bond issue for that city, and other things affecting the metropolis. Fourth—Concerning harbor imments. Fifth—To remove Andrew M. Wilson from the office of Railroad Commissioner on the grounds of corruption.

Rapid changes of temperature are hard on the toughest constitution.

The conductor passing from the heated inside of a trolley car to the icy temperature of the platform—the canvasser spending an hour or so in a heated building and then walking against a biting wind—know the difficulty of avoiding cold.

Scott's Emulsion strengthens the body so that it can better withstand the danger of cold from changes of temperature.

It will help you to avoid taking cold.

Polishing Glassware.

You have heard of many valuable ways to clean glassware and give to the pieces a desirable brilliancy, yet here is a method which is a "secret" and certain to give the best results. Wash the glass pieces and drain until dry, then coat each piece with a mixture of half water and ammonia. When dry brush the pieces with a soft bristle brush. Be sure and use only the bristle brush or the polish will not appear. This is excellent for glassware of any kind and makes old pieces look like new.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

County Taxes.

Over $31,000 was turned into the county treasury Monday by County Tax Collector Frank Collins, being paid in for taxes last month. Fifteen thousand dollars of the amount was in coin and the balance in checks. Clearing house certificates have also been accepted by the tax collector when tendered. Taxes are now being paid in at the rate of from $3,000 to $5,000 per day Evidently this talk of calling an extra session of the Legislature to defer the payment of taxes is not bothering the people of Sonoma county to any great extent.

Veritable spring weather has blessed this valley the past two weeks. This has been remarkable for November. The result has been that the wild grasses are growing rapidly under the genial rays of the sun and the absence of frost Should the weather continue warm, with occasional showers for another two weeks there will be an abundance of feed for stock before the middle of December, butter and eggs will take a tumble and the wood pile will look almost as big then as it does now.

An Unlucky Automobilist.

Mr. L. M. Turton, the well-known architect of Napa, came speeding into town last Saturday in a handsome "Sunset" automobile. He arrived here about the noon hour and like the man the comedian sings about would "have rode right in, turned right around and rode right out again" had the machine not balked in front of Dubring's store after making a fine run from Napa. For some unaccountable reason, when Mr Turton essayed to resume his journey, the machine became as stubborn as a balky horse and could not be started up. All Saturday afternoon and late into the night Mr. Turton, assisted at times by almost every mechanic in town, worked over the obstreperous chug wagon without result—the combined efforts of electric light men, gasoline engine experts, blacksmith, carpenters, bakers, butchers, lawyers and even the doctors could not put life into the apparently paralyzed machine, and for the nonce it was given up as a bad job.

Sunday morning Mr. Turton, assisted by Ernest Clewe, again tackled the unruly machine, and finally after working over it on and off for thirty-six hours more, the auto gave a sudden snort and was off. After speeding around town for few minutes Mr. Turton brought his automobile to a standstill in front of Poulson's horseshoeing shop, but when he attempted to start the thing up for a return run to Napa it again balked.

At latest accounts the machine was in Petaluma and Mr. Turton was still working away at it with the patience of Job.

We would suggest that Mr. Turton turn the machine over to the funny house of his town. It certainly is off its base.

County Warrants are Now Cashed With Certificates

County warrants are now being cashed by County Treasurer Glenn Murdock with certificates issued by the Clearing House Association of Sonoma County only. The association is composed of twenty of the leading banks of the county. They have been issued to tide over the present stringency of the money market and their face value is as good as that of gold These certificates have been cheerfully accepted by those holding warrants against the county, the only exception being three school marms, who demanded the coin of the realm and upon being told it was certificates just now or nothing flounced out of the County Treasurer's office in high dudgeon at the very "ideah" of such stuff being offered for teaching the rising generation how to shoot. Evidently they were Missourians and will have to be shown.

Celebrated Her Thirteenth Birthday.

Miss Ramona Granice, youngest daughter of H. H. Granice, celebrated her thirteenth birthday at the home of her father on Napa street Wednesday afternoon. Fourteen little guests, who had been bidden to be present, spent a very enjoyable afternoon in feasting and playing out-door games on the spacious residence grounds. Dainty refreshments were served the little folks, the table being presided over by Mrs. R. J. Keogh, grandmother, and Mrs. Fred. F. Sprague, sister of Miss Ramona.

Miss Emilie Poppe presided at the piano, and played a grand march as the little folks led by the youthful hostess filed into the dining room, which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion

Many pretty birthday tokens were received by the little hostess.

Although born on the 13th of the month, with thirteen letters of the alphabet in her name and the event being her thirteenth birthday, the affair was a most happy one for Ramona and her little friends.

Ladies' Aid Society Meets at Hocker Home.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the Hocker home on Napa street Tuesday afternoon. Thirty members were present. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Hocker, who proved a most gracious hostess, and the members spent a most agreeable afternoon in discussing the affairs of the society and social converse.

Three new names were proposed and added to the list of the members of the society, which now numbers nearly a hundred.

The next meeting of the society will be held at the residence of Mrs. Clude Johnson.

Finger Amputated by Band Saw.

Julius Fochetti, Jr, met with a painful accident on Friday afternoon of last week. While at work in the wagonmaking shop of J. Fochetti & Son, the middle finger of the left hand came in contact with a rapidly revolving band saw and before the young man had time to realize what had happened to him the finger was amputated below the first joint. A surgeon's knife could not have made a nicer job. The injury was attended to by Dr. Hayes. The loss of the digit will give young Fochetti an enforced vacation of a week or two and that is not what he was yearning for, as he only returned to work a few days before the accident after a two week's rest in Mendocino county.

Snow Mountain Power Co. Secures Franchise.

The Snow Mountain Water and Electric Power Company was granted an additional franchise by the Board of Supervisors last Monday. The franchises secured by this company will enable it to construct pole lines and conduct electricity for power and light into every section of the county. Work on the line, which will be a rival of the Bay Counties Power Company, is going right ahead and in a short time its poles will loom up in every section of the county.

The Thanksgiving Eve Ball

The twenty-first annual ball to be given here on Thanksgiving eve by the Young Men's Institute of Sonoma, will be largely attended. The affair is being looked forward to with pleasure by the party-going people in every part of the valley for everybody turns out and attends these annuals of the Y. M. I., and for that reason one always enjoys himself. Although the ladies are always very much in evidence on these annual occasions wall-flowers are conspicuous for their absence. The music for the ball this Thanksgiving eve will be furnished by Pauli's orchester and the supper by mine host Frank Koenig of the Union Hotel.

Merit Recognized.

S. T. Daken of Glen Ellen, who came to this valley from San Francisco just after the destruction of that city by fire, has had two of his canvases accepted and placed on exhibition in the art gallery at Del Monte, and that, too, in face of the fact that numbers of paintings by artists better known than Mr. Daken, were rejected. Since setting up a studio in Glen Ellen Mr. Daken has transferred to canvas some magnificent Sonoma Valley views. These paintings have yet to be heard from.

Charles C. Champlin, a graduate of the Sonoma High School and the University of California, was ordained a Congregational minister at the Berkeley Theological college last Tuesday.

Serious Illness of Mrs. T. Baines

Mrs. Thos. News From the Mines

Dr. Fred. F. Sprague is still at work on his mining claims in the Lappan meadows, although the weather is intensely cold in that section of the sagebrush State. A letter received from him one day this week says that he and his fellow miners have to thaw out the ice in the sluice boxes each morning with boiling hot water, as they freeze solid during the night. Lots of gold is in sight and a rich clean up is anticipated.

Wise Talks by the Office Boy.

There's no let up to business in this store; you'd hardly know it was only the second week of November, we're so busy. I only hope I can hold this job down until I get big enough to go down in front.

I believe I can make good all right. The two principal things they want of a salesman here is that he be polite and attentive and tell the truth. No one is allowed to misrepresent goods. We don't claim to sell better goods than any one else for less money, but better goods for the same money, or the same goods for a little less money. If everybody would do business the way it is done in this store, there wouldn't be the odor of burnt money in the air all the time. If you buy an article here, and it does not give you full value in honest wear, you can get your money back or a new article and no questions asked. In some stores this "money back" talk is just bluff! they make it so hard for you to get satisfaction you get disgusted and sneak out. In this store it's "moneysworth" or "money back," and you are the one to decide which. We're selling lots of underwear this month, and unpacking Fall suits to beat the band. Come in and make yourself at home. WILLIE.

Ganderbone's November Forecast.

Copyrighted 1907 by C. H. Rieth.

Long we've waited for November, when the winds are swift and chill, when the first-come snows of winter drift along the window-sill; when the hunter finds pneumonia waiting for him at the lake, and the pies we get resemble those that mother used to make.

Everybody fond of mince pies
Dances nimbly, feeling good;
Now and then an old subscriber
Comes up with a load of wood.
Winter's coming, and the bad boys
In the schoolroom sing and dance,
For the teacher cannot fease them
When they wear their winter pants.

November was the ninth month in the old Roman calendar, and gets its name from novem, meaning nine. The ber, which we would spell burr, was added by Nimrod, the quail hunter. He had an Irish setter with which he hunted in Novem, and the dog got so many burrs on its tail that he called the month November. Like all burrs this one stuck.

November's place in the calendar was changed when Thanksgiving was invented. The Romans debated this in the Senate. Some of the Senators thought November should continue the ninth month in the year. Turkeys, they pointed out, were large enough to eat, and there was enough to be thankful for by that time in the year to go right ahead with the fireworks and the escalloped oysters. Cicero had been very silent all this time. When the Senators who wanted to observe Thanksgiving three months before Christmas had said all they had to say, he arose and disposed of them forever by simply saying: "But cranberries won't be ripe!"

The hills are painted red and gold,
The frost is hoar and white,
The moon is sailing waite and cold
Across the skies of night;
The Fish and Harriman dispute
Will become a mortal strife;
Instead of proxy ballots,
They'll demand each other's life.
So each will take of strychnine
A good and deadly lump,
And then they'll shake the dice to see
Which gets a stomach pump.

The President has gone for game and killed a lady bear, the days are growing short and soft, and hazy in the air; the country editors who once had money in their tills, are selling all their diamonds now to pay their paper bills.

Sagittarius the Archer is the zodiacal sign for November. His name is from the Latin word sagitta, meaning arrow, and is typical of the sudden cold shooting into the earth and causing the turnip to run for the cellar like a whitehead. From the first to the twenty-second of the month the sun will be in the constellation of Scorpio, which is Mr. Bryan's unlucky constellation, and will make it difficult to tell whether he is coming or going. From the 22d to the 30th, the sun will be in the constellation of Sagittarius, in which Mr. Taft and the White House are at aphelion, and he will look as if he would finish first.

Mercury which will be an evening star during the first two weeks of the month, will tire of lovers and buggy-riders on the 14th, and will be a morning star for the rest of the month. It will cast enough light on the key holes for sports to find them without using a funnel, and will look with contempt into the chambers of mollycoddles and milksops.

The girl who sued a summer man
Where cool breezes course,
Will keep on suing—in the courts—
And capture her divorce;
The watered railroads will contrive
To have a few more wrecks,
And the press will print more lists of names
With broken backs and necks.

The loving maid will feed her beau on good dyspepsia fudge, the farmer with the smokehouse will touch off his hickory smudge, the proclamation will come out, and the hired man will put the turkey's head upon the block and amputate his foot.

The flower for this month will be the chrysanthemum, and the birthstone will be the topaz.

A red or pink chrysanthemum is the symbol of love; a white one signifies truth, and a yellow one despair. When you wear a yellow one, it means that the electric light bill has come in.

If you were born in November you will be thrifty, ambitious, strong and earnest. If born in the latter half of the month, you will be brave, kind, honest, just, generous, quick of temper, and have a keen sense of humor. But you can never be President. This is a great disappointment, but you can't have everything.

The lucky days of the month are the fifth, eleventh, thirteenth, twenty-second and twenty fifth. Any of these is a good day upon which to begin a trial marriage. The unlucky days will be the sixth, fifteenth, twentieth, twenty-ninth and thirtieth. Cover the chimney up on all of these days, or the stork may bring you a pair of twins. The day to buy mining stock will be the thirty-first.

This will be a very busy month. The trusts will try and arrange it so nobody can live, the moon will be full on the 19th, and the wolf will take up its winter quarters on the front porch.

Hurrah, we'll all sit down to feast
Within a few weeks or so,
The rich will have their turkey then,
However high they go—
But most of us will sit around
And eat a piece of crow.

THE ARCTIC REGION.

Where Smoke Rises From the Sea and Trees Burst From Cold.

Explorers who penetrate the Arctic and Antarctic seas have a chance to observe one of the strangest phenomena in nature, that of smoke rising from the sea. Wherever the temperature falls to 15 degrees below zero clouds of steaming vapor ascend from the ocean to be immediately frozen into tiny particles of ice and dropped once more into the water.

The same thing takes place on land, the vapor rising from the snow and even from the bodies of the explorers themselves. In this case, however, the ice particles fall on the ground and make a weird rustling, like the swish of a silk dress.

At 40 degrees below zero the sap of trees is turned to ice, and the trunks burst asunder with a sharp report. These mysterious sounds and sights are awe inspiring to all who do not know their cause, and they may account for some of the strange tales that are told of the frozen north.

Natural light at sea is a much more common phenomenon. As the screw of a steamer churns the water under certain conditions you may see the waves glowing angrily where they have been disturbed. This is called phosphorescence, and scientists are not agreed as to its cause.

WHISTLER AND MONEY.

The Eccentric Artist's Utter Lack of Business Instinct.

The Dundee Advertiser tells a story illustrating Whistler's forgetfulness and utter lack of business instinct. Being hard pressed for a debt and having finally been informed he would be sued unless a check for the amount was sent by return post, the artist mentioned the matter to one of his friends who lived near him. Explaining that he had a few pounds in the bank, the exact sum unknown, he requested his friend to stop at the bank on the way to business to ascertain what was required to make his account good for a check of slightly over £90 and to deposit that amount for him as a loan.

The friend was quite willing and in due time stood at the cashier's desk of Whistler's bank asking the amount of his balance and explaining the errand. The cashier was interested. He went to the big book of balances, turned over a few pages, wrote down some figures and in a moment placed them before the astonished friend. Whistler's balance was more than $30,000.

The artist was delighted, but found it difficult to remember when he had deposited so much money or where he had got it.

A Beaconsfield Story.

A lady who was his constant friend and benefactor begged Lord Beaconsfield to read Mallock's first book and say something civil about it. The prime minister replied, with a groan: "Ask me anything, dear lady, except this. I am an old man. Do not make me read your young friend's romances."

"Oh, but he would be a great accession to the Tory party, and a civil word from you would secure him forever."

"Oh, well, then, give me a pen and a sheet of paper." And, sitting down in the lady's drawing room, he wrote: "'Dear Mrs. ——, I am sorry that I cannot dine with you, but I am going down to Hughenden for a week. Would that my solitude could be peopled by the bright creations of Mr. Mallock's fancy.' Will that do for your young friend?"

As an appreciation of a book which one has not read this is perfect.

The Alternative.

At a fancy dress ball for children a policeman was stationed at the door and was instructed by the committee not to admit any adults. Shortly after the beginning of the ball a woman came running up to the door and demanded admission.

"I'm sorry, mum," replied the policeman, "but I can't let any one in but children."

"But my child is dressed as a butterfly," exclaimed the woman, "and she has forgotten her wings."

"No matter," replied the policeman; "orders is orders, so you'll have to let her go as a caterpillar."—London Answers.

Lights Out!

An irascible sergeant, going his nightly round of the barracks in order to make sure that all lights had been extinguished, noticed that a window was illuminated. He roused the occupants of the room. "Put out that light," he ordered, "and be quick about it!"

"But it's moonlight," explained a private.

"I don't care what it is," roared the sergeant; "put it out!"—London Graphic.

Costly Monotony In Dress.

Our clothes are all alike, and this monotony has led to unlimited extravagances. What has not been done to make the eternal pinafore frock look original? New elaborations are invented daily, each one more expensive than the last, but nobody is deceived. It is still the old pinafore, only a little madder, a little dearer, every day.—London Graphic.

An Unfortunate Interruption.

"George was just going to propose to me last night."

"And what happened?"

"A tire blew up, and then he couldn't think of anything else."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The sacred crocodiles of Egypt were buried with her proudest kings.

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for 10 Years Without Failure.

Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have also been subject to croup, and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequaled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

The Daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune only $9 for the two newspapers.

A Quick and Safe Remedy for Bowel Complaint.

Twenty years ago Mr. Geo. W. Brock discovered that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was a quick and safe cure for bowel complaints "During all of these years," he says, "I have used it and recommended it many times and the results have never yet disappointed me." Mr. Brock is publisher of the Aberdeen, Md., Enterprise. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Sheathing a Ship.

Sheathing a ship is covering the bottom with a sheath of copper. In all seas, but particularly in those of the tropics, the hulls of ships are liable to the attack of certain worms which penetrate the hardest wood and have been known in the course of a few months to damage the hull so as to render the vessel worthless. Copper sheathing protects the ship not only against the attacks of these borers, but also against decay, and is especially valuable in the case of iron ships, the metal rapidly oxidizing and becoming brittle when exposed to the action of the sea water.

Fortunate.

"I thought," said the author as he took back the manuscript, "that the story would just about do for you."

"Yes," rejoined the editor, "that's just about what it would do if we printed it, but fortunately I happened to read it myself, so I am returning it to you for fear of accidents. People are so careless."—Judy.

How to Cure a Cold.

The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time is one in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Quinsey, Sprains and Swellings Cured.

"In November, 1901, I caught cold and had the quinsy. My throat was swollen so I could hardly breathe. I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me relief in a short time. In two days I was all right." says Mrs. L. Cousins, Otterburn, Mich. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment and is especially valuable for sprains and swellings. For sale by L. S. Simmons.
